

FACES

Faces which represent UNF-dreamy, happy or just reflecting the dreams and memories behind them. We seldom take the time really to see what is reflected there . . .

We should because they have much to tell, and each says it in a different way. Yet the message is the same: we have a purpose for being here, this is where we want to be,

and what we want to be, and what we do here is worthwhile. Someday when we have the time for reminiscence - memories of the faces at UNF will appear and we will remember . .

that when we felt lost and ready to quit there was a face which said you can make it - hang in there.
And we will be thankful for the memory.

COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

Dr. Willard O. Ash, Dean

The College of Arts and Sciences continues a philosophy which was exemplified in the life of Leonardo da Vinci. He knew that being a specialist was not enough for many people, and that a general body of knowledge was required to provide a more fulfilling life. He believed that life had to be more than mere existence. Thirst for knowledge and love of beauty are natural to man, not in conflict with each other. Leonardo became a painter, scientist, musician, city planner, writer and engineer - all careers which seem to conflict, yet they did not. He also believed the solutions to man's problems could be found in man himself and in nature. Followers of Leonardo's philosophy, students in the College of Arts and Sciences, also believe there is more to life than rudimentary existence, that a sound general education is needed which extends the mind and understanding. These students, together with their faculty, search for new ideas, new lines of thought about old ideas, and believe in the right to think uncommon thoughts about the meaning of life. The College of Arts and Sciences offers its students the opportunity for an enriched existence - the opportunity to become proficient in widely diverse areas of life.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Dr. James M. Parrish, Dean

The College of Business Administration prepares men and women for positions of responsibility in the professions or the business world. These men and women must be equipped with knowledge and skills which will enable them to advance quickly in their careers. They are the managers of tomorrow; people who not only will successfully adjust to change, but will initiate change when and where it is most necessary.

They are citizens who must also be prepared for life outside of their careers. An appreciation of the values and obligations of life in a free society is a requisite--an appreciation for humanistic activities and a real concern for the needs of others. This necessarily demands that management education be a life long process, fitting graduates with marketable skills which will help them excel, not just survive.

The College of Business Administration has a formidable task in guiding and preparing leaders for tomorrow's world of business; the college has also acquired a faculty who perform this task with a remarkable degree of success. It is a place where excellence is expected.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Dr. Andrew A. Robinson - Dean

What will the America--and the world-- of tomorrow be like? The answer to this question will be found in school rooms all across the land--in the hearts, minds and dreams of the children who fill them. These children will inherit our world, with all the good and the bad which we have built into it; they are the ones to whom we leave the task of building the better world for which all people are now searching. No one else will be around to do it.

Our children will need hearts that are not afraid to care for others, hearts that dare to challenge society's set rules and traditions, hearts that have strength and moral character; they will not always be right, either. They will need minds which are open, creative, and eager to learn more about things of which we only dreamed. Their dreams will be bigger, more encompassing, magnificent, and also possible if they are guided, abetted, and trusted to stand alone when their time comes.

So, the hands which guide them must be carefully chosen and prepared for this purpose. This mission is the responsibility of the College of Education; they perform it with great success.

The Division of Technology, our newest academic area, is off to a great beginning, having graduated its first student in June with more on the way. Dr. Adam Darm chairs this new academic area. His division fills a real need for those students who have the academic skills, industrial experience, and the desire to excel in industrial technology.

This is an individualized program which is tailored to the abilities, skills, and interests of each student, preparing the graduate for a career in Construction or Manufacturing Technology. The world is waiting for these graduates.
