AROUND TOWN

Sound Advice

• It's too late to see "A Jazz Nativity," the poignant and spirited production staged by Anne Phillips and Bob Kindred during the past weekend at St. Bartholomew’s Church. But try to catch The New York Voices, a vocal quintet that added warmth and spice to that flavorful show (and a post-performance party), when they perform on Dec. 23 at J’s Broadway near 97th Street.

• If you read this early enough, you can still make it to the living room of St. Peter’s Church, Lexington at 54th Street, by 13:30 p.m. to hear Judy Niemack, a singer whose powerful, eloquent voice will be underpinned by the soaring piano of pianist/singer Ronnie Wyke.

• Jack Kleinsinger’s Highlights in Jazz features a Jazz/Latin Jam at 8 tonight, tonight evening at the NYU Loeb Student Center, LaGuardia Place at Washington Square, featuring Ray Barretto, Paquito D’Rivera, Steve Turre, Lew Soloff, Junior Mance, Michel Camilo and Marvin Smitth Smith.

• And singer Dakota Staton, a singular stylist, performs this evening, tomorrow evening and Saturday night with the Bross Townsend Trio at Marty’s East, 209 E. 55th St.
Jack,
Thanks for all the support. You're a real groove! Keep on swingin'!
