ETA SIGMA GAMMA INITIATION

Eta Sigma Gamma is really "movin' on." On Monday, Nov. 15, the club opened its first chapter in the state of Florida, designated as the Alpha Gamma chapter. An induction ceremony began at 10:30 in the library commons. Presiding was the president of the National Honorary, Dr. Warren Schaller, professor of health education at Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana. Guests were introduced by Dr. Iris Brown, advisor to the local chapter. A buffet luncheon was served at noon. At 1:45 Dr. Brown presented Mr. Phillip Rountree, from the State Department of Education, who spoke on "Responsibility and Role of the State Department and Federal Government in the Development of School Health Policies.

The ceremony was well attended with approximately 40 members inducted into the organization. Among guests attending were Dr. Thomas Carpenter, President of the University of North Florida, and Drs. Jack Netcher, Heath Whittle and Betty Flinchum, instructors in physical education at UNF. Dr. Carpenter spoke briefly after the ceremony, stating that it was one of the most inspiring he had attended, that he was quite pleased because our campus was selected by the national organization on which to open its first chapter in Florida. Dr. Carpenter expressed pleasure that such a young institution as UNF has progressed far enough in such a short time to reach this national recognition.

The original nucleus of UNF's Eta Sigma Gamma took preliminary steps more than a year ago to accomplish what took place here on Monday. It was an important undertaking and well done; we congratulate our health students on their perspicacity and hard work.

FORENSICS TEAM WINS

The UNF Forensics team opened its first season with some impressive wins this year, qualifying two students for national competition.

Alan Ceballos placed first in the persuasive speaking event held in Moorehead, Kentucky on Oct. 30, competing in a field of 36 entries which represented 20 universities.

Among the schools he defeated were Moorehead University, whose forensics team placed fourth in the nation last year; Ball State University, nationally fifth last year; Princeton University; and the University of South Florida.

Ceballos's forensics coach, Ozzie Banicki said, "We both have one common denominator; we are both perfectionists." "We want to win," he added.

Ceballos won his second tournament and trophy, also for persuasive speaking, November 13th at Montevallo University in Montevallo, Alabama.

Keith Gold, also competing in this tournament, took second place in rhetorical criticism.

One of the main reasons for Ceballos' involvement in public speaking is to help develop his skills for law school. Gold, who wishes to pursue a career as a college professor of fine arts, feels he needs to further his skills in communication.

Ceballos and Gold have presented their trophies to Dr. Roy Lassiter, vice president of academic affairs, in order to provide encouragement for other students to take part in the forensics program.

UNF will host its first forensics tournament Friday, December third. Gold will be competing in areas of persuasive speaking and rhetorical criticism. Ceballos is not scheduled to participate because he will be taking his Law School Admissions Test that day.

WHAT ARE YOU THANKFUL FOR?

The Campus Ministry is sponsoring a non-denominational Thanksgiving Service on Monday, November 22 from noon until 12:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

There will be special music provided by a quartet, audience participation in songs and slide presentations.

Come and give thanks with us.

SAWMILL SLOUGH

The Sawmill Slough has had some interesting speakers at their monthly meetings this quarter. In October Joe Cury of "Consumer Power Inc." debated with a representative from O.P.S. on Nuclear Power Feasibility. A large crowd was present, and the debate attracted news coverage from channel 4 and 12. The debate answered many questions on a difficult and controversial issue. The November meeting followed with a representative from the Mayor's Energy Office giving a talk on Current Energy Conservation Strategies. Pamphlets on energy conservation are available from Sue Leger in the Health Office. There will be no meeting in December due to final exams. Final plans are being made for the Christmas Party on December 11th. See Sue Leger or Ray Bowman for details. Members will be notified of finalized plans in the next club newsletter.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

The UNF Political Science Club is in the process of determining its Winter Program. Serious consideration is being given to the organization of a seminar on several aspects of Public Administration, involving local and regional professionals. The club is also busy with the selection of two students, from a number of applicants, to represent the University of North Florida at the Citadel's traditional spring seminar on "Political Violence", held annually in Charleston, South Carolina.

ARCHERY

Congratulations go to William Sanders, president of UNF's Archery Team. William won the Southeastern Regional Collegiate Target Championship with a finish of 1282 to capture the men's individual title.

Wade Cadewall, another UNF student, took second with a score of 1279 and Bill Luellyn, a student at Florida Technological University, finished third with a 1277.

FROM FINE ARTS

On Friday, December 3rd, at 8:30 p.m. the University Singers, conducted by Dr. Merrill J. Palmer, will present a concert of baroque music at St. Paul's By-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Jacksonville Beach. Featured works on the program include Johann Sebastian Bach's Cantata 63 and the Magnificat in D. major. Both works were performed in Leipzig during the 1723 Christmas season. Soloists include Mildred Humphries, Elizabeth Bradfield, Annie Hightower, Jane Palmer, Marcus Shaw, Patrick Chapman, Donald Edwards and Wayne Bailey.

George Frederick Handel's Concerto No. 4 for Harpsichord and Chamber Orchestra will also be presented. Arthur Bloomer, UNF professor of organ will be the featured soloist. Added to the final movement of the concerto will be an "Alleluia" chorus which is excerpted from the oratorio "The Triumph of Time and Truth".

The University Singers will be joined by the St. Paul's By-the-Sea Children's Choir under the direction of Mr. James Johnson for this chorus.

FOR THOSE INTERESTED IN SCIENCE

The Department of Natural Sciences presents an interesting series each quarter entitled "Colloquium in the Natural Sciences," consisting of a series of lectures and discussions on scientific topics of current interest. The program presents a speaker (or speakers) who lectures on a specific topic on a biweekly basis.

Guest speaker for the Colloquium on Thursday, November 4, was Dr. William Fryer, Supervisor of Science and Environmental Studies, Duval County School Board. Dr. Fryer's topic was "The Scope of the Science Programs in the Duval County Secondary Schools.

Be sure to watch for the next quarter's signs which will denote times, places, speakers and topics.

GRADUATION CEREMONY

There will be a graduation ceremony on Tuesday, December 14, at 7:00 p.m. Commencement exercises will be held in front of building one; a reception will follow at 7:45 in the library commons.

FROM THE OFFICE OF STUDENT ACTIVITIES

In our first Up-Date of this quarter, we offered a welcome to you, both new and returning students, inviting those of you who were not acquainted with the office, to meet the staff and become informed of the many services which we provide. We now express our pleasure that you accepted the invitation. We hope you have enjoyed the time spent with us and look forward to welcoming you back next quarter.

Hello again, everyone — oh, oh! I just realized that I won't be seeing you again this quarter. Do you detect a touch of sadness creeping over my usually happy face?— that's because I'm missing you already. But I'll keep my chin up— the holidays are comin' up soon and that's a merry thought. And how did you like our show at the Boathouse on the 19th? When I think of our good times there, my sunny smile returns. I'm sure we can look forward to the winter quarter Happy Hours. So until then— Happy Holidays!

Since this is the last issue of the Up-Date for the fall quarter, we take this opportunity to say we are glad we were given the chance to compile the publication for you; we hope you have enjoyed it.

KEEPING UP WITH SGA

The State Council of Student Body Presidents (SCSBP) met on UNF's campus October 30 and 31. Issues discussed were strategy for the upcoming Florida state legislative session and system wide guidelines for the administration of Activity & Service (A & S) fees.

The SCSBP is made up of the SGA presidents from the nine universities within the State University System (SUS). They meet once a month, rotating campuses for their meetings, to discuss policy changes by the Board of Regents and ideas, problems and/or solutions encountered by the student governments in the different universities.

Last issue we featured pictures of various SGA members along with their reasons for getting involved with SGA. We also featured some mystery students. This issue we wish to identify them along with their reasons for getting involved with SGA.

CATHERINE BELL—
Representative, College of Arts and Science. Psychology major.

"I am interested in student governance as applied to student activities and student relations within the university community. I wanted to represent the student interests in the college of Arts and Science."

Attending this meeting was Apollo Visko, executive director of the Florida Student Association lobby group in Tallahassee. Visko's job is to lobby for different legislative bills affecting student interests, such as lower tuition.

Joe Smyth, UNF's SGA vice-president, is the annex director for this campus. He informs Visko of the needs in our area.

Also attending this meeting were Joe Stafford and Dick Hewlitt, vice chancellors of the Board of Regents, Joe Kaplan with the SUS's Department of Education and Roger Nichols, deputy commissioner of education.

UNF SGA members who attended were Mary Ann Waters, president; Joe Smyth, vice-president; Brenda Cain, secretary; Jim Wells, treasurer; senators Burt Jordan and Jim Brennan and representatives Diane Jones and Lowell Lorbeer.

UNF has a traffic appeals court. If you have received a ticket and feel it was unjust you may appeal it. The appeals court is composed of three students and one faculty member. To find out when they meet contact Don Graham, professor of transportation, ay 646-2646.

The next SGA meeting will be held December 1 at 4:00 p.m. in Building 9, room 1101. All UNF students are urged to attend

BURT JORDAN—
Senator and Speaker of the House. History major.

"My objective in being an SGA member is twofold -- one, to help increase the influence of students in campus affairs which are vitally important to them, and two, to try to make that influence as responsible as possible to both the students and the university community as a whole."

DIHANN THOMAS—
Representative, College of Business. Graduate Student in the M.B.A.

"I am involved in student government because I feel that students should play an important role in the planning and operation of the educational system.

UNF SHOWS APPRECIATION TO JACKSONVILLE

It's not billed as a circus . . . or a fair . . . or even a bazaar.

Yet, if the University of North Florida has its way, UNF INVOLVEMENT DAY will have the spirit and aura of all of these - - and a little more.

Scheduled for Friday, Dec. 3 - - and spilling over a bit into the evening before and the following day - - UNF INVOLVEMENT DAY is an opportunity for UNF to show its appreciation to Jacksonville and area residents by inviting them to come to the UNF campus and "get involved," according to Dr. George Corrick, UNF vice president for university relations.

"We've had events in the past which have been opened to the public," Corrick said, "but this is the first occasion in which we've tried to coordinate a 'smorgasbord' of activities - - almost all open to the public - - involving the majority of our campus units and people."

The result, the UNF vice president said, will be a day-long chance for people to visit UNF and participate in a variety of activities and events spanning many interests.

Under the "umbrella" of a day-long open house, UNF departments and organizations will sponsor individual programs designed for both specific audiences and the general public. Included in the schedule to date are a dedication of UNF's new handicapped nature trail and nature trail tours, information booths for prospective students, campus tours, a $1.80-a-plate lakeside chicken barbeque, a series of workshops, gift drawings, band performances, a biofeedback and self-hypnosis demonstration and, in the evening, a UNF University Singers concert at Jacksonville Beach.

In addition, invitations have been extended to area school personnel within UNF's four-county service area to join with related groups for presentations, dialogue, and refreshments.

MORE

UNF will also open to public inspection its newest building, a laboratory/classroom complex virtually completed, housing its Division of Technologies and Departments of Special Education, Transportation and Logistics, Psychology, Physical Education, Sociology, Political Sciences, and Nursing.

UNF officials also are scheduled to unveil the architectural model of the proposed 750-seat auditorium/ Student Activities center/ conference center.

A significant event underway in conjunction with UNF INVOLVEMENT DAY will be the Florida Crown Individual Event Forensics Classic, hosted by UNF, which will bring student competitors and their coaches and judges from 20 colleges and universities within the eastern United States.

UNF INVOLVEMENT DAY got its start as an occasion for campus departments and organizations to develop and sponsor highly individualized and visible events and activities of their own design - - each standing on its own merit - - under the umbrella of the day-long celebration.

"The natural thing for us to do, as we enter our fifth year of service to northeast Florida as an upper-level state university, is to encourage those whom we serve to join us in celebrating their state university in Jacksonville," Corrick said.

"We want people from Jacksonville and the surrounding area to come out to the University so we can show them how much we appreciate their support over the past five years," Corrick added.

"In putting together UNF INVOLVEMENT DAY, we just sort of created a 'cup' and invited our students, faculty, and staff to 'fill it up' with their events and activities," Corrick said.

In addition to a general invitation to all residents of Jacksonville and surrounding areas, UNF specifically has invited back to the campus its alumni, donors, and friends who have given UNF significant support during its formative years, Corrick continued.

"In a sense, I guess you could say UNF is having its 'homecoming' - - but without the traditional football or basketball game," he concluded.

Persons interested in visiting the campus may contact the office of public relations, 646-2450, for information concerning specific events. A complete schedule will be available shortly. UNF is located on St. Johns Bluff Road, one mile south of Beach Boulevard.
