UNF Transportation & Logistics Career Day

Sponsored by APICS

What recruiters need to know!

Twice a year, the T&L Program hosts recruiters from regional, national and international transportation and logistics companies to conduct one-on-one interviews with current students in the UNF Transportation & Logistics Program.

Students are asked to register and submit a resume. Resumes are posted on a password protected website, and the link is sent to recruiters who have an opportunity to review resumes and request interviews with specific candidates using a ranking system (#1 being their first choice). Students will review position descriptions and use the ranking system to request an interview with specific companies.

Preferences of recruiters and students are entered into a mathematical model that computes an interview schedule based on these preferences. For example, if a recruiter picks a student as their #1 choice and the student picks the company as their #1 choice they are guaranteed to have an interview. Recruiters also have the option of declining an interview with a specific candidate, which in the long run maximizes the value of the schedule and minimizes irrelevant interviews.

Students are urged research the companies they are interested in and prepare for an interview. However it is not unusual that last minute changes to the interview schedule will give recruiters a chance to sit down with students that were not on the original list.

Interviews are held in 25 minute time blocks with a 10 minute break between sessions. A box lunch will be available at 11:40 a.m. Feel free to eat with your colleagues and the students, or use the time as a working lunch. There will be a networking reception at the conclusion of the interviews until 4:30 p.m. We encourage you to stop by to network with students, alumni and colleagues in a casual setting. Students are required to attend.
