

What's happening

Vol. 1 No. 21

published biweekly by the division of student activities

December 12, 1973

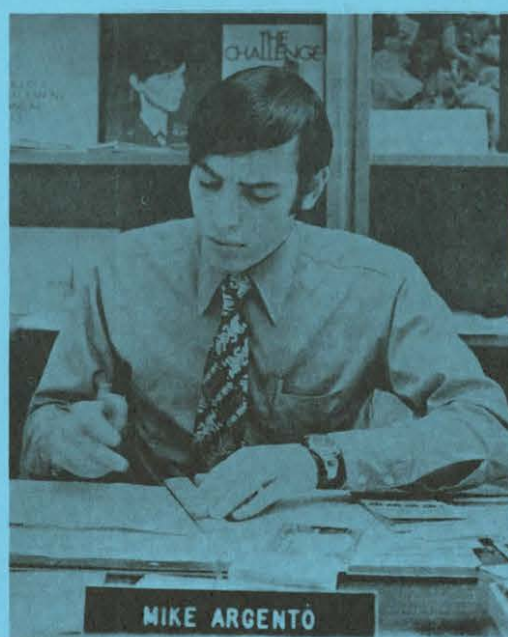

"Let Mike do it! has been a familiar statement in the Office of Student Activities and Mr. Michael Argento, Assistant Director, usually is doing it or finding a way to get it done.

Mr. Argento is everywhere on campus, for his jobs are so varied that he must be in meetings getting organizations to organize, man tables for surveys, assistance and getting students involved as well as arrange for graduates to be photographed in one office while he runs down information for car pools in another.

As the son of a Navy officer, he has lived in many places. He was born in Hawaii and lived everywhere from California to Virginia, with short stays in Italy and side trips over Europe. He received his BA in Communications from Florida Technological University near Orlando, Florida. Mr. Argento has been the advisor for the University's "What's Happening" since its first issue. At the present time he is working with the committee to design a magazine yearbook which will come out quarterly.

Mr. Argento helped set up the Student Activities Office with the first Dean of Students, Dean Baggett. Motivating students to want clubs and organizations was his first job. He worked with these organizations, finding many ways for them to generate student interest. Starting the campus Friday evening movies was another one of his projects, as well as arranging such events as the Spring Festival, Sports Week, and Thanksgiving Day Program. Another side line in his day's activities is working with students finding housing and assisting in job placements. As a bachelor he can understand the needs of the younger student and he has tried to find events that will be of interest to them. However, he has had speakers and events that have proved to be enjoyable for all students.

When asked what was the most memorable task of the past 18 months, the Assistant Director stated, "I think getting "What's Happening" started and watching it grow, as well as working with the Publications Committee these many months to get a larger newspaper designed and ready for the University's second year. Each has been challenging to my career as Assistant Director of Student Activities but now we have the new paper and I must be on to other things."

Plans for many more events as the University continues to grow will keep Mike moving even faster but he has a special way of making the student assured that his or her problem is the only problem of importance at the time. Sharing his time is one of the things he does in his position but doing it with his own flair helps to make the department an active part of the University community.

"Bringing the event to the student rather than the student to the event," has been Mr. Argento's goal.

EDITORIAL

The "What's Happening" is no more; the "Halyard" will take over.

Another phase of the University is completed. The campus will have a newspaper and the "blue" sheet's reign of one year can end.

Before the staff closes the door in Student Activities, it wants to present some laurel wreaths:

To Mike Argento, Staff Advisor for over one year. Thanks for guidance, praise and the push we needed to get our paper out.

To Barbara Walters, Secretary in Student Activities and member of our small staff. Your work, diligence and perseverance have aided us so often.

To Barbara Keller, we miss you, but we have carried on the example you left. The year of work that you gave to UNF is not unnoticed. To Terry Fehrs, your ability to step in these last weeks by typing and setting titles have contributed a great deal. To writers Steve Sutton, Don Renshaw, Tom Page, Roger Sallas, as well as the club writers--Thank you.

To Debbie Stiefel, you have been a big help. Lance Green, Bob Underwood and the staff of the Intramurals office, we hope you will offer your help to the "Halyard," and thank you from all. An additional note should be sent to Mr. Richard Reisinger, Dean Darwin O. Coy, the staff of the Instructional Communications Center, and the Duplicating Department and Office of Public Relations. Each member of these departments has been instrumental in making the life of "What's Happening" a successful one.

Looking back through past issues, we find the names of the original staff, Editor, George Tuskey and staff members Denise Doris and Bonnie Ridge. Don Renshaw was also on the first staff. To each of these workers, thank you for making this paper possible.

An extra-special message to a singular type of person--Pat Wolfe, Assistant Editor and lifeline of our staff. Pat has "dummied," proof-read, done lay-out and final type for each issue since April of 1973. She has spent many hours working for "What's Happening," and we all thank her.

It will be strange not to worry about "deadlines," the duplicating department, and the getting of the paper on the stands, but we know a more efficient and professional vehicle will represent the students of UNF and we the staff and office rise to progress. Like any other old soldier, "we'll just fade away."

Ruth Skapyak
Editor

The staff of the "What's Happening" appreciates the foregoing comments as to its contributions to the newsletter. However, we feel that the person who has contributed the most in time, enthusiasm, creativity, and general leg-work, has not been mentioned.

Mrs. Ruth Skapyak started with the newsletter as staff writer and has been editor for the past five months. During that time she has spent many long hours gathering information, writing articles, doing interviews, and tending to the thousand and one details of putting out a newspaper. Throughout it all, Ruth has remained a consistently cheerful and thoroughly thoughtful individual. It has been a pleasure for all of us on the "What's Happening" staff to work with her, and we wish her well in her future endeavors as a member of the staff of the upcoming "Halyard."

THANKSGIVING

The first annual Thanksgiving Day Program at UNF is now history, but its impact will remain with the citizens of this campus for some time.

The winners of the poetry and essay contests helped to create the atmosphere necessary for a traditional observance. Doris Manukian, winner of the poetry contest, captured this special feeling when she picked up her engraved plaque, "...I'm thrilled, of course, but I have never attempted to write a poem and I really don't look at my Thanksgiving Prayer as such. It is the story of my life up to now and I just wanted to put it on paper and express my appreciation for all the good things that happened to me. I strongly feel that it is a valuable experience to suffer at one time or another in your life. You learn to appreciate the good things, even little ones, so much more."

Many of the students of UNF appreciate the fact that someone took the time and cared enough to gather together and give thanks.

After four days encompassing 24 long hours of dedicated work, the UNF Blood Drive has ended successfully. Two hundred students attempted to give blood while 149 pints were collected.

The success of the drive is due to a joint effort of the donors and volunteer workers. Two outstanding students, Dave Kahle and Richard Caniff, volunteered to assist the nurses of the mobile unit parked at the entrance to the University. Also assisting were Dave's wife, Nancy, as well as his Sister-in-law, Jeanne Bucholz. Each gave a great deal of their time, adding to the successful completion.

We all thank you for the work done and for the good will you spread for our University. Mrs. G. Ray, Supervisor of the Student Health Department adds her appreciation to the donors and workers. She stated that all donors will receive Donor cards with blood type in two weeks. The cards will be mailed to the home of the Donor.

URBAN TRANSPORTATION IS FOR ALL

TRL 454, "Urban Transportation" is being offered this winter quarter and is open to all students, Arts and Sciences, Business, and Education. It is your chance to find out the hows, whats, whys, and wherefore of urban transportation in Jacksonville, in Florida, and in America; now and in the future! Why did those bridge tolls go up? Is there a monorail in Jacksonville's future? Can positive action in the fuel crunch be taken by the UNF community? What are transportation planners doing to reverse urban blight, and suburban sprawl? What will our politicians let them do?

"Urban Transportation" will look at these and many other questions which should be of interest to any UNF student. Because of this, and because of the limitless implications of urban transportation, TRL 454 has been designed for all UNF students; there are no business prerequisites! In fact, the Transportation and Logistics Department is actively seeking non-business majors for the course in order to broaden the range of ideas, questions, and discussions.

"Urban Transportation" will be offered during time block 15, Monday and Wednesday nights from 6:00 to 8:05 P.M.. The course is being held at night because its teachers spend their days professionally involved in transportation planning. Don Ingram, one of the instructors for TRL 454, is the Executive Director of the Jacksonville Downtown Development Authority. The other instructor is Ed Mueller, Executive Director of the Jacksonville Transportation Authority. So, "Urban Transportation" will be a real life, not just a textbook study.

Interested? Check with your advisor. If you or your advisor have questions, come by the TRL Department (001-1248). TRL 454 will be a very good contextual or venture elective for any UNF student, and an excellent one for business, history, political science, and sociology majors.

C A M P U S

A visit to Florida Publishing Company for a tour of both local papers, The Times Union and Jacksonville Journal, proved to be a highlight of Mr. William Roach's Journalistic Writing class this past week. The members of the class were guided on the tour by Mr. A. A. Fredrickson, Assistant Executive Editor of Florida Publishing Company. Through observing the fascinating method of operation, students attending grew to appreciate the effort necessary to produce both papers.

On Thursday, Mr. Fredrickson was a guest of the class and was given a tour of the UNF campus by Mr. Roach and Mr. Henry Newman of the Public Relations Office.

Dr. Peter Kranz's class, "Human Conflict in Black and White," visited Channel 4 on December 6, in order to view the preview filming of the class.

Channel 4 has worked up a Dimension project designed to take a look at this most unusual course in racial conflict. One aspect of the film deals with the home visit in which each of the five white and five black students must spend a week in the home of someone of the opposite race.

The film tries to give an objective look at what the course is all about and goes into the homes that two students stayed in. It was a unique experience for most blacks and whites.

The tentative date for the film to be shown on Channel 4 is set for December 14, as a Dimension project.

Dr. Gerald Stine, our UNF geneticist has previewed and highly recommends your watching GENETICS: The Broken Code. This program will be televised Monday evening, December 17th, on Channel 7. On Tuesday evening, December 18th, Dr. Stine, Dr. Carson and Dr. Forres will be on Feedback to answer telephoned questions concerning this program.

The Propeller Club of the United States, Port of the University of North Florida is concerned with matters of interest and importance in maritime, domestic and foreign commerce, all phases of transportation and general business administration. The Port at UNF was chartered December 7, 1972 and was the first club to organize and function on the campus of UNF.

The Propeller Club is here to serve the student body of UNF. We would like to see more students from all fields become interested in our organization. If you are like many other students, you really haven't made up your mind as to where and for whom you want to work. Well, come see us.

The Propeller Club promotes tours, guest speakers, luncheons and scholarships. Just recently six of our members received scholarships from various Jacksonville firms. On our tours we meet your future bosses, personnel managers and other management people. These tours will give you a chance to see the inside of the Jacksonville business community. Our speakers represent a wide range of businesses. Some of our past speakers were from Suddath Van Lines, Offshore Power Systems, Seaboard Coastline Railroad and many other prominent businesses.

Presently we are planning a tour of the Jacksonville Airport System and other places of interest to our members. If you'd like to be informed and meet prominent members of the business community, come see us! Contact Bill Rebenack or any member of the Propeller Club, or check with Student Activities.

What do you know about the economic world you live in? If you wish to know more, learn by doing. Join the University of North Florida Adam Smith Club!

The purpose of the Adam Smith Club is to provide a link between classroom knowledge and the actual functioning of our economy. This will be accomplished through participation in various research projects dealing with analysis of economic activities in the Duval County area.

Join the club dedicated to the art and science of economic and business research.

How: Become a member during our Membership Drive

Where: In front of the Administration Building

When: December 12, 13, and 14

Why: Profit

The new officers for Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity Colony at UNF, are: Bob Butler, President; Fred Smith, First Vice Pres.; Rod Ford, Second Vice Pres.; Lowell Lorbeer, Third Vice Pres.; Fred Wood, Secretary; and Dave Kahle, Treasurer. The new officers will serve till March 31, 1974.

A-Phi-O is dedicated to leadership, friendship and service on about 600 college campuses. Applications for membership are available from any of the above officers or in the Student Activities Office. Join now and be a charter member. Lucius E. Young, National President says, "Your commitment dares you to take advantage of the many opportunities for personal development. You will gain leadership experience and share in the friendship of your Brothers by using these opportunities to be involved in the Service Program of the Fraternity. The self-evaluation involves your recognition of the needs of mankind and your voluntary and unselfish response to these needs with service -- to the campus, to the community, and to the nation-- you will find solutions to these situations. You will also experience an awareness of the rewarding satisfaction of seeing others benefit from and appreciate your service."

The region four convention will be held December 26, 27 and 28, at the Sheraton - Biltmore Hotel in Atlanta, Georgia.

A-Phi-O will hold a car wash December 29 and a party in the evening. For further information contact Lowell Lorbeer at 771-7403.

GLANCE

I would like to wish everyone the happiest of Holiday Greetings.

Penny Mikus
Centrex Operator

(You probably have not met Mrs. Mikus but have spoken to her many times as she is the helpful operator who answers at the University's main number. We return her greeting.)

Students who are covered by the group insurance policy that the University holds with Continental Insurance Company, may pick up an identification card in the Office of Student Activities. A cancelled check or cashier's receipt should be presented as proof of payment.

Reminder to Financial Aid Students
Failure to have your registration fee card validated at the cashier's window prior to Thursday, January 10, 1974, will result in your being assessed the $25.00 late fee.

Fatigued? Headache? Sore throat swollen glands and fever? Could be "just what's going around" or it might be infectious mononucleosis. There is little known about "mono". It is believed the Epstein-Barr Virus is responsible.

Lymphocytes are white blood cells responsible for a portion of the body's natural immunity system. In mono, the white blood cell count increases sharply with atypical lymphocytes. Diagnosis is confirmed by a "mono" test or heterophile agglutination.

Symptoms vary with individuals. In addition to sore throat, swollen glands, and fatigue; there may be a rash, enlarged spleen, and even jaundice. Treatment is dependent upon severity of the disease and its associated complications. Mono usually affects the individual for a day to two weeks, for some longer.

If you suspect you have mono let a physician make the diagnosis. For more information consult the Student Health Office.
