CAMPUS DEVELOPMENT PROCEEDS

The calm of the University's wilderness campus is soon to be shattered by the roar of earth moving equipment. The first phase of our fast-track construction program will get underway within the next ten days as the Conrad Weihnacht Construction Co. begins site improvement and building a construction access road.

Weihnacht was the apparent low bidder at $48,600 in Wednesday's bid opening at the office of Reynolds, Smith and Hills, architects for Phase IB. The project involves clearing and grubbing acreage to accommodate four buildings planned for Phase IB and for parking areas. In the course of clearing, Hilton Meadows, our director of physical facilities, hopes that some attractive lakes and ponds can be created or expanded to beautify the campus. The road which Weihnacht is to build is an access route for construction vehicles--not a permanent road, although Mr. Meadows has indicated the road may become a fixture later.

The next step in building progress will be the bidding of foundations, scheduled for Aug. 1. Site preparation is to be completed Aug. 20, the day foundation bids are to be opened.

DR. CORRICK TO ATTEND CAPITOL HILL DAY

Twenty-five members of the American College Public Relations Association (ACPRA) and American Alumni Council

(AAC) representing Florida colleges and universities, will meet with almost the entire Florida Congressional delegation in Washington, D.C., July 20. Part of a three-day national conference, Capitol Hill Day was set aside for the state ACPRA and AAC representatives to meet with their respective delegations to exchange ideas on the current issues and problems confronting higher education.

Dr. George Corrick, dean of university relations and development, is the state coordinator for the special day.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION

Hilton Meadows, director of physical facilities, thanks everyone on the University staff for the fine cooperation during the "Big Move" last week.

Dean of administrative affairs, Jim C. Haywood, would also like to extend his appreciation and gratitude to the staff members assisting with the preparation of the legislative and six-year PPBS. This includes the directors in the administrative affairs department, the secretarial staff and the student assistants who worked after hours and on Saturdays to get the budget finished.

REMINDER OF A REMINDER

Controller Bob Wallace asks that all department heads refer to the memo of July 1 concerning the correct budget names for the departments and use these new names on all requisitions.

FREE NEW YORK TIMES AVAILABLE

Ward Hancock receives a complimentary copy of the New York Times every day. Check with Helon Evans when you wish to read a copy.

LIBRARY REQUESTS

Lucille Jans requests a few courtesies of staff members when using the library. When browsing, please return books to their exact location on the shelf or give them to a library staff member for reshelving. Any staff member leaving the staff of the University should return all library materials checked out before his last day. Any new staff members wishing to check out material from the library and the new book shop should see Delma Swarn for assistance.

GROWING LIBRARY

Andrew Farkas, director of libraries, is proud to announce that the library has exceeded its July 1 projected goal of 42,000 volumes by 5,000 to date.

COMMUNICATING WITH OUR MOST IMPORTANT PUBLIC

A special edition of University News Facts went out to the more than 1,000 prospective students on our mailing list this week. In the newsletter President Carpenter updated the potential students on the progress of our building program, staffing, and academic programs.

CONFERENCE ROOM NOTES

Dr. James Dungan, dean of planning and evaluation, is responsible for scheduling the conference room use. The room will be unavailable on the following dates due to the system workshop for the College of Education: July 14, from 2 p.m. until the end of the day; July 15 and 16, all day; and August 5 and 6. Please plan your needs accordingly.

Hilton Meadows, director of physical facilities, has asked that those using the conference room leave it clean and ready for further use as the University cannot provide janitorial service after each use. So take your coffee cups and dirty ash trays with you when you leave.

THIRTEEN JOIN THE RANKS OF UNF

Thirteen new staff members joining the University as of July 1 have brought the staff size to a total of 86. Seven new department chairmen are among those just coming aboard. They are: WILLIAM J. ARTHUR, department of accounting, who comes to us from Lynchburg College where he was vice president; EDWARD A. HEALY, department of natural sciences, formerly professor and director of the honors science program at Providence College; NELL D. KANNWISCHER, department of elementary education, who joins us from the Florida State Department of Education, where she was an associate for teacher education and director of program approval in teacher education; DR. FRANK S. MCLAUGHLIN, department of marketing, and management and business law, who came from the University of Richmond, where he was an associate professor of business administration; DR. JOSEPH M. PERRY, department of economics, formerly coordinator of undergraduate studies in economics at the University of Florida; DR. WARREN ROSE, department of transportation and logistics, formerly professor of logistics management with the University of Houston; and DR. SAMUEL E. RUSSELL, department of vocational and technical education, who came from Florida A&M University where he was director of industrial education.

Our new registrar, Miss BETTY ANNE CRIPPEN, joined us from the University of Georgia where she completed a master's degree in counseling. Miss Crippen was registrar at the University of West Florida.

DR. WILLIAM R. BAGGETT, new dean of students, came to the University from Valdosta State College where he was dean of students and associate professor of education.

DOROTHY P. WILLIAMS, reference/documents librarian, came to us from William M. Raines High School where she had been head librarian since 1968. Mrs. Williams has been in library work since her graduation from Florida A&M University in 1960 with a bachelor's degree in library science. She received her master's degree in the same field from Syracuse University.

Information systems has a new face in the office, that of BEVERLY HICKS, a new key punch operator. Beverly is a senior at Florida A&M University where she is majoring in mathematics.

Finance and accounting's new account clerk is LINDA THOMAS, a Bethune-Cookman graduate with a business administration degree. Linda is from Lake City, Florida.

MARCIA TWIGGS, a part-time student at Edward Waters College, has joined the division of public relations staff as student assistant. Marcia is studying business education.

PEACOCK ERA ARRIVES

In case you haven't noticed there's an intense competition going on among male staffers for the title of champion peacock. Dr. Robert Mitchell probably started it all by showing up everyday in fine threads. Then it spread within the Office of Academic Affairs to Dr. Roy Lassiter. The vice president had been stealthily cultivating a luxuriant set of sideburns. When they reached appropriate growth--somewhere between Amos Burnside and Reubin Askew length--Dr. Lassiter appeared in sartorial splendor with a brilliant color-coordinated combination.

Leaping across the lines of the organizational chart the peacock epidemic spread to--of all places--the Office of Planning and Evaluation. Dean James Dungan, long a devotee of basic black (or black on black), suddenly appeared in a tie with more colors than Peter Max's palette. Next to fall victim was silent Fred Simmons, director of information systems, who returned from his New Orleans trip nattily attired in a boldly checked double breasted and looking for all the world like the king of Canal Street.

Finally even the grey masters of the money in finance and accounting succumbed: Dean Jim Haywood sported a vibrant purple shirt and tie that caused sunglasses to be whipped out in self-defense by his staff. Through it all the pace setter has remained President Carpenter, but look out behind you boss, we're gaining!...Fashion editor

GET ACQUAINTED

My, how we've changed! It used to be so easy to remember the faces that you worked with and associate the names. Now with more than 23 new people joining us within the past few weeks, it is more and more difficult to learn to know each other, and make the new members feel welcome. To make this easier, a "get acquainted" social has been scheduled for Monday, July 12, at 3:00 p.m. in the President's office. All the new members will be there and you will get a chance to meet them all by following this schedule:

3:00 p.m. - 3:20 p.m.	Academic Affairs University Relations and Development
3:20 - 3:40	Library Planning & Evaluation
3:40 - 4:00	Administrative Affairs

Adjust your schedule if you must, but come and make your welcome and your presence known.
