AMERICAN COMMEMORATIVE CANCELLATIONS

Issue Date
June 22, 2010

First Day City New York, NY

Artist Gary Kelley Cedar Falls, IA

Designer Derry Noyes Washington, DC

Art Director Derry Noyes

Typographer Derry Noyes

Modeler Avery Dennison, Security Printing Division (AVR/SPD)

Manufacturing ProcessGravure

Printer Avery Dennison (AVR) Engraver Trident

Colors Yellow, Magenta, Cyan, Black

Image Area (w x h) 1.42 x .84 in. 36.07 x 21.34 mm

Format
Pane of 20 (1 design)

Plate Numbers
"V" followed by four single digits

Marginal Markings Header: "BLACK HERITAGE," "33rd IN A SERIES," © 2009 USPS, plate numbers, price, barcodes, plate position diagram, biographical text, USPS logo

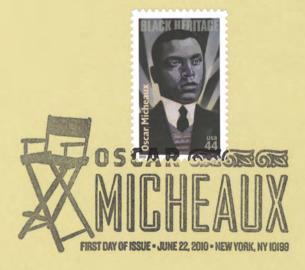

Oscar Micheaux

The 33rd stamp in the Black Heritage series honors pioneering film-maker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951), who wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century. Micheaux was active at a time when African-American filmmakers were rare, venues for their work were scarce, and support from the industry did not exist—and when a unique African-American voice was bound to cause controversy.

From the start, Micheaux's films mocked corrupt preachers or depicted characters who gambled, drank alcohol, or used slang and vulgar language. "I am too much imbued with the spirit of Booker T. Washington," he explained in 1924, "to engraft false virtues upon ourselves, to make ourselves that which we are not. Nothing could be a greater blow to our own progress." By contrast, Micheaux ensured that his heroines were typically intelligent and strong and that his films promoted hard work and education. In a 1947 letter distributed to theater managers, he defended his portrayal of the African-American experience: "We want to see our lives dramatized on the screen as we are living it, the same as other peoples, the world over."

Forgotten after his death, Micheaux was rediscovered in the late 1960s and 1970s by film historians. Although only 15 of his movies are known to have survived in whole or in part, his ingenuity and determination have made him a cinematic icon. In 1986, he was posthumously awarded a special Directors Guild of America award, and in 1995 the Producers Guild of America established the Oscar Micheaux Award to honor "an individual or individuals whose achievements in film and television have been accomplished despite difficult odds."

The stamp features a stylized portrait of Micheaux by Gary Kelley, who based the stamp art on one of the few surviving photographs of the filmmaker. The photograph, which appeared in his 1913 novel The Conquest, shows a young, determined filmmaker eager to discuss and promote his on-screen portrayal of the African-American experience.

Oscar Micheaux

oscar Micheaux (1884–1951) was a man ahead of his time. Born to a farming family in southwestern Illinois, he went on to write, direct, produce, and distribute more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century—long before African-American filmmakers enjoyed industry support or widespread venues for their work.

Micheaux's films were often rooted in his own experiences. As a young man, he worked a variety of jobs, including a stint as a Pullman porter, before purchasing land in South Dakota and becoming a homesteader. In 1913, he turned his own experiences into The Conquest, the first of several novels. As he traveled the country selling his books, Micheaux showed an entrepreneurial spirit that foreshadowed his career as a filmmaker.

In 1919, Micheaux earned rave reviews in the Chicago press after he wrote, directed, and produced a big-screen adaptation of his 1917 novel The Homesteader, which combined a love story, a Western, and a dramatic tale of African-American life. During the 1920s, he made more than 20 movies about such controversial subjects as mob violence, lynching, and racial identity. He also adapted novels, produced courtroom dramas, and dabbled in autobiography, and later he became the only producer of silent movies for African Americans to make the transition to producing sound pictures.

This 33rd stamp in the Black Heritage series features artwork by Gary Kelley based on one of the few surviving photographs of Micheaux: a portrait from his 1913 novel The Conquest that shows a young, determined filmmaker eager to discuss and promote his on-screen portrayal of the African-American experience. As Micheaux himself explained in 1947: "We want to see our lives dramatized on the screen as we are living it, the same as other peoples, the world over."

background and integlio: Fotosearch Stock Photography; top and bottom left: Courtesy Margaret Herrick Library, Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences; top right: Courtesy of the State Archives of the South Dakota Historical Society; bottom right: © Bettmann/Corbis

Stamps printed by Avery Dennison (AVR) / No. 854 in a series / June 22, 2010 / Printed in U.S.A. / © 2010 United States Postal Service

BLACK HERITAGE

33rd IN A SERIES

V1111

Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884–1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists.

Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884–1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists.

Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884–1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to Inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists.

Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more Ihan 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists.

Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists.

Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists. Pioneering filmmaker Oscar Micheaux (1884-1951) wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies during the first half of the 20th century, when African-American filmmakers were extremely rare and support for their work was scarce. His entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision continue to inspire new generations of filmmakers and artists.

464900

@ 2009

USPS

PLATE POSITION

7,6490

x 20

$8.80

MICHEAUX

COMMEMORATIVE STAMP OF FIRST-DAY-OF-ISSUE CEREMONY

Columbia University School of the Arts • Miller Theatre 2960 Broadway & 116th Street
New York, New York • June 22, 2010 • 11 a.m.

MASTER OF CEREMONIES

VOZA RIVERS
Chairman, Harlem Arts Alliance
Executive Producer
New Heritage Theatre Group

WELCOME

CLAUDE M. STEELE Provost Columbia University

INTRODUCTION TO MUSICAL GROUP IMPACT

JAMAL JOSEPH Chair, Film Program Columbia University School of the Arts

NATIONAL ANTHEM LIFT EVERY VOICE AND SING

IMPACT REPERTORY THEATRE Harlem, New York

OFFICIAL STAMP DEDICATION DELORES J. KILLETTE

Vice President and Consumer Advocate United States Postal Service

MUSICAL TRIBUTE

WYCLIFFE GORDON QUARTET

REMARKS

GEOFFREY FLETCHER
Adjunct Faculty of Film, Columbia
University School of the Arts

MELVIN VAN PEEBLES Independent Filmmaker and Author

MOVIE TRAILER PRESENTATION: OSCAR'S COMEBACK (work-in-progress)

LISA COLLINS

Director/Producer; Columbia University School of the Arts (MFA '98)

MARK SCHWARTZBURT Co-Director/Producer

CLOSING REMARKS

VOZA RIVERS

HONORED GUESTS

PEARL BOWSER

Filmmaker ("Midnight Ramble") Author and Micheaux Scholar

JAINE GAINES

Professor of Film, Columbia
University School of the Arts

IERRY WILSKE

Director, Oscar Micheaux Center Gregory, SD

MICHEAUX

This 33rd stamp in the Black Heritage series honors Oscar Micheaux (1884–1951), who wrote, directed, produced, and distributed more than 40 movies. An ambitious, larger-than-life figure, Micheaux thrived at a time when African-American filmmakers were rare, venues for their work were scarce, and support from the industry was virtually nonexistent.

Born to a farming family in Illinois, Micheaux spent his teenage years as a laborer before becoming a Pullman Porter and traveling the country by train. In 1904, he purchased land in South Dakota and became a homesteader, an experience he turned into The Conquest, the first of his several novels.

In 1918, Micheaux began writing, directing, and producing his first movie: a big-screen adaptation of his third novel, The Homesteader. Combining a love story, a Western, and a dramatic tale of African-American life, The Homesteader earned rave reviews, and Micheaux went on to make more than 20 movies during the 1920s, some of them controversial. During the 1930s, when Micheaux found himself competing with sound films and slick Hollywood movies for the attention of black audiences, he became the only producer of silent movies for African Americans to make the transition to producing sound pictures as well.

Forgotten after his death, Micheaux was later rediscovered by South Dakota historians and film historians; today he is a cinematic icon remembered for his portrayals of the African-American experience. As he wrote in 1947, "We want to see our lives dramatized on the screen as we are living it, the same as other peoples, the world over."

The artwork on the Oscar Micheaux stamp keenly captures its subject's entrepreneurial spirit and independent vision. Artist Gary Kelley based his stylized depiction of Micheaux on one of the few surviving photographs of the filmmaker, a portrait in his 1913 novel The Conquest.

First Day of Issue Ceremony

