The University of North Florida is one of 10 publicly funded institutions of higher learning in Florida. A comprehensive metropolitan university, UNF enrolls more than 11,000 students in baccalaureate, professional and graduate degree programs. UNF opened for classes in 1972 as an upper-level university; and in 1984, freshmen and sophomores were admitted for the first time. During the past 25 years, 30,941 students have earned UNF degrees, and over 69,000 students have earned academic credits.

The University currently offers 63 undergraduate degree program majors, graduate degree programs in 40 disciplines and a doctoral program in Educational Leadership. These degree programs are offered through five academic units: College of Arts and Sciences; College of Business Administration; College of Computing Sciences and Engineering; College of Education and Human Resources; and College of Health.

Reflective of the University's high academic standards, UNF is frequently ranked among the best higher educational institutions in America.

Money magazine's Guide to the Best Colleges has ranked UNF as one of the top ten public commuter universities in the nation. Similarly, U.S. News & World Report ranks UNF academically among the top 30 of all colleges and universities in the South and as one of the top ten "Best Buys" among regional universities in the South, based upon the quality and costs of education.
