"HIGHLIGHTS IN JAZZ" SALUTES MILT HINTON

Before the old year rang out, the jazz world showed up in full force to salute one of the most talented and best loved musicians of the past five decades—Milt Hinton. The auditorium at NYU was jam-packed as Milt, smiling but obviously deeply moved, received the "Highlights in Jazz" plaque from the hands of his leader for over fifteen years, Cab Calloway.

Before the evening was out, this remarkable bass player showed that the old snap was with him as strongly as ever. But not before he had been paid verbal and musical tributes by top bassists who will be forever in his debt—Ron Carter, Richard Davis and surprise guest Major Holley.

The festivities began with a stand-up-and-cheer version of Fats Waller's "Squeeze Me." Teasing the tune to fever pitch were Panama Francis on drums, Harold Mabern on piano, Eddie Bert on trombone, Chet Amsterdam on electric bass, Jon Faddis on trumpet, and Al Cohn on tenor sax. The latter was soon joined by veteran Budd Freeman, who played both tenor and soprano sax.

The first half stayed in high gear, but when Milt Hinton came on for the second half the concert took on a mellow mood that showed some jazz standards to best advantage. In addition to the great work by Milt and other bassists, a word should be said in praise of Jon Faddis, whose perfect control of trumpet was particularly amazing.

Amazing too were the vitality and humor of the great Cab Calloway, who must be all of 21 judging by the life he put into "Get Happy," "Nature Boy" and "St. James Infirmary."

Nothing could follow that but the three bassists—Milt, Ron and Chet—backed by piano and drums, working up to a fabulous finale in which they were joined by all the other musicians. The joint really jumped, and the sold-out house gave Milt the standing ovation he so richly deserves. A long life and many years of happy playing, Milt Hinton!

Dick Murphy AND ALL THAT JAZZ!

During the holidays, concerts and parties proliferated. One of the best was the Highlights In Jazz tribute to stellar bassist Milt Hinton, at the N.Y.U. Loeb Student Center, on December 16. Due to a "Must attend" cocktail reception, I missed the first half of this tremendous show. There was standing room only for the event that had such stalwarts as Al Cohn, John Faddis, Majoy Holly, Richard Davis, and Ron Carter on hand. The legendary Cab Calloway absolutely destroyed the audience in his brief appearance during the second half.

Milt came on to accept an award from producer Jack Kleinsinger and play in a couple of exciting pieces. I'm really sorry to have missed the first half of what the overjoyed crowd said was the best concert the Highlight In jazz Series has had this year.

The next show will be "Jazz Stars of the Seventies" on February 16. Featured will be Gary Burton, Barry Miles, Steve Swallow, Eric Kloss and Cavril Payne. Tickets are only five bucks and you can get further information by calling (212) 598-3757.

Dear Jack -
There can be evidence of no greater love than this: That a fellow give of himself as you did to shape into being the lovely tribute to me.

The results of all your efforts, time, energy, and money were manifested in the productive evening.

Please give my thanks to your parents. Their presence and good wishes helped to make my evening a real success. Mona joins me in wishing you

Happy Holidays.

Matt Hunter Sincerely
