President's Corner

Welcome returning and new Ospreys!

Every semester offers an array of opportunities to further ourselves as both students and business professionals. I am very excited to lead TLS as we have an amazing board and club advisor who have been hard at work planning our Fall events. It is a great line up of TLS meetings, socials, Snack and Learns, and community service. The T&L Flagship offers Career Day, facility tours and the Executive Spotlight to ALL UNF students. These events offer networking with an extensive T&L alumni network, recruiters and professionals from all over the region and the country. Everyone is invited to the TLS Fall Kick-Off on the Coggin Pavilion on Sept. 13 where you can learn more about TLS and the benefits of membership. Be sure to take advantage of all the opportunities available. You never know where they will lead!

Helen Kostandarithes, TLS President

Get to Know: TLS Newsletter Editor, Juliana Young

I am thrilled to be the new TLS Newsletter Editor. I was born in Denver, CO and moved to Florida 6 years ago because one brutal winter my family decided to trade in the snow for the sand! This is my third year at UNF. I am a double major, Transportation and Logistics and International Business, with a minor in Spanish. This semester I plan to find an internship and prepare to study abroad next summer. I've been a member of TLS for two years and made it my goal to become part of the executive board and devote more time to TLS. I highly recommend going to all of the events, but especially the snack and learn programs because they offer insight on the different career paths a T&L degree can prepare you for. Participating in TLS has helped me narrow down the types of jobs I want to pursue and has taught me very crucial networking skills. It is going to be a great year and I look forward to seeing you at TLS and T&L Flagship events!

JAX Chamber T&L Council

The JAX Chamber Transportation and Logistics Council was formed "foster an environment where transportation, logistics, supply chain professionals and policy makers, as well as those who serve those businesses, can meet, educate, debate and become a leading voice for cross-industry solutions." The T&L Council hosts a monthly luncheon to discuss innovations to the field and promote Jacksonville as "America's Logistics Center".

TLS president Helen Kostandarithes is a student member of the council. She invites UNF students to attend the luncheons on the last Thursday of every month. It is a chance to network with leading industry professionals, learn about the field of Transportation and Logistics and discover new career opportunities. For information: www.jaxtlcouncil.org/

Life After Graduation: Ryan Moore, CTL

Ryan Moore graduated from UNF in Spring 2016 with a BBA in T&L. Ryan started his path to professional success in fall 2014 as an intern at Crowley Maritime. The experience he gained prepared him for his current position as Supervisor of Land Transportation and Heavy Haul at Crowley Logistics where he has worked for 2 and a half years. On a typical day he manages a team of brokers who specialize in handling dry van and reefer freight throughout the US. He also oversees a heavy haul team providing specialized transportation services to government and commercial accounts. Ryan learned a lot about the industry by participating in 2 T&L Career Days, several facility tours, and represented UNF as a member of the IANA Case Competition team. He strongly advises students to take time and participate in as many events as possible because "they provide experience and knowledge that will enhance an internship."

During his time at UNF Ryan held a leadership role in TLS as social director. Ryan advises students "to treat every event as though it is a job interview by conveying the characteristics that you would want potential employers to notice. This attitude will put you over the top in your endeavors and help you land your first job after graduation." Not only did this approach teach Ryan how to speak to potential employers and practice his interview skills. His last piece of advice to his fellow Ospreys is to "stay in touch with your peers, professors, and advisors after you graduate. The relationships built at UNF are the ones that will last the longest and have potential to make a big difference in the future."
