Hi Nicky,

I have been talking with a woman in the archives. I will be meeting on monday with Rob Spindler who is the Archivist for the library. Some questions they asked include:

- Where are the materials currently?
- What types of materials (photos, manuscripts, membership lists etc)
- The dates of the materials (I told them it included several decades of information from women in criminology)

I would say things are looking positive at this point. Its just like all bureacracies, things run pretty slow around here. If you get this before monday and have any details I should cover let me know. Otherwise, I'll do my best and get back to you next week.

Take care,

Julie

Hi, Nicky:

We are still in the "planning" stage for the archives. There has been some talk that the archives may be set up at Ohio State University if arrangements can be made. Nothing definite has been decided at this time.

I am collecting any archive material that members wish to send -- although I have not received anything yet resulting from THE CRIMINOLOGIST article.

Will keep you posted when I know more.

Sarah

Dear Sarah:

For the last few years I have been trying, without much success, to find a university library to serve as a repository for the DWC's archival materials. Now I read in the most recent CRIMINOLOGIST that you are collecting materials for the archives of the ASC in general. Would you please let me know where that archive will be located when it is all set up and who (if anyone) within the ASC is responsible for making the arrangements? I want to see if I can hook up with that person.

Thanks for your help,
Nicky

Nicky:

Ron Huff at Ohio State University said he would look into the matter of having the ASC archives stored at OSU, but I have not heard anything from him recently. His office is being moved into a new building just built on campus, so I am sure it is taking a little while to get settled in.

Will keep you posted.
