MUSICAL PLEASURES

Jazz and Gershwin

It seems hard to believe, but tonight marks the ninth anniversary of Jack Kleinsinger's "Highlights in Jazz" series, that traveling show that finally has found a permanent home on the second Thursday of every month at the Loeb Student Center of NYU (566 LaGuardia Place; 598-3757). To celebrate, Kleinsinger has scheduled two concerts by Buddy Rich and his orchestra tonight, at 8 and 10. Drummer Rich's orchestra features Steve Marcus on tenor saxophone and, as is sometimes the custom at this series, there will be at least one surprise guest. Who will it be? Well, if you knew, it wouldn't be a surprise, would it?

• Barbara Lea and Brooks Morton have put together what Barbara calls a "two-person revue that we intend—we hope—will go into a theater," and they are giving a production of it tonight at Jan Wallman's restaurant (28 Cornelia St.; 242-9557). It's called "Strawberries" and it's "mostly Gershwin songs," Barbara explains, "all George Gershwin but not quite all Ira." There will be some things from "Porgy and Bess" that aren't heard often. "It doesn't have a story line," she explained. "It's a balance between known and unknown songs, the comic, the serious and the jazzy." Act I will be at 9 p.m., Act II at 11. It's a very tiny place, so reservations are required if you want a table.

GOING OUT Guide

JAZZ

"Highlights in Jazz" has had one of the longest jazz runs in New York. It has been part of the beat of the city for nine years, and tonight it is celebrating its birthday with a big band, the band led by Buddy Rich, the drummer, which will do two shows, at 8 and 10 o'clock tonight, in New York University's Loeb Student Center, 566 La Guardia Place, at Fourth Street (598-3757).

With Mr. Rich and his band will be Steve Marcus on tenor sax and another, as-yet-undisclosed, jazz figure who is billed as a "surprise guest." The band is undeniably big: five saxophones, three trumpets, four trombones, bass, drums and piano, everything but a partridge in a pear tree.

Admission: $3.50 and $7; for the four concerts this season, one a month, $24.
