JOAN LUNDEN

Joan Lunden is seen by millions of people every day on "Good Morning America," the Number One early morning news and information program in the country, as she interviews national and international newsmakers, entertainment and literary figures, and medical and legal experts.

A native of Sacramento, California, Joan joined "Good Morning America" as co-anchor in 1980, has become one of the most visible women in the country, and, as a result of sharing her two pregnancies with her viewers, one of America's best-known working mothers.

Joan was Outstanding Mother of the Year in 1982 and hosts "Mother's Day," a program on parenting that reaches 19 million homes every day, 6 days a week. Joan may also be seen hosting a series of spots on parenting called "Mother's Minutes" which airs during afternoon prime time.

Joan's dedication to her family, her work, and her civic responsibility has brought her numerous honors and awards. She chaired the American Lung Association's 1983 National Smoking and Pregnancy Program. She sits on the National Media Advisory Council for the March of Dimes and played a leadership role in their 1983 Health Education Campaign, "Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies."

The Women's Center of Florida Junior College is pleased to bring to Jacksonville one of America's most well-known and successful mothers, career women, and community leaders — a woman who is truly "Ten Plus!"

THE WOMEN'S CENTER

The Women's Center — begun in 1974 — owes its existence to those who recognized the changing roles of women. Out of social situations such as divorce, widowhood, and the need for personal growth, the founders created opportunities which produced a flourishing climate for women who might never have expected or prepared to work outside the home. The Women's Center — a new concept in Northeast Florida — made it possible for women to dream bigger dreams and to make them come true.

In that tumultuous climate, the FJC administration provided matching funds for a grant to establish the Women's Center, which offered testing, counseling, seminars, and courses to help women evaluate themselves and establish their own goals. It provided the chance for continuing education, training in new skills, and practical help for women seeking their first paying jobs, advancement in jobs already held, or finding rewarding volunteer work.

Now, more than a decade later, the thousands of women who have used the services of the Women's Center have confirmed both the need for such services and the Center's success in providing them. Comments by many of these women describing the Center's role in helping them alter the direction of their lives, smooth painful transitions, and find exciting new possibilities are eloquent testimony to the Women's Center's success in fulfilling its mission.

On the cutting edge of change, the Women's Center has grown from a small grant program to an integral part of the College, serving ever more women with expanded programs that meet immediate needs and anticipate the future.

The Women's Center is especially grateful to all the visionaries who helped shape its history and who continue to play a role in its future, in particular to:
