EDU 502

RHETORICAL THEORY

The content of this graduate speech course will be based primarily on Aristotelian theory and its role in the modern world of oral communication. Classes will focus on theory, discussion, and skill building.

Instructor: Edna Saffy, Ph. D.

Dr. Saffy received her Ph. D. in Rhetorical and Public Address from the University of Florida, with her primary area of study in classical rhetoric. She has been a professor of speech communication at FCCJ for 30 years. Dr. Saffy has taught both undergraduate and graduate courses at the University of Florida, University of North Florida and Jacksonville University. As a political consultant and communication expert, she has participated in local, state, and national campaigns.

JACKSONVILLE UNIVERSITY

FALL 1998 TERM

Class will meet at

FCCJ South Campus
11901 Beach Blvd., Room T-201

Mondays

August 31 - December 7, 1998

2:30 - 5:30 P.M.

Contract Grading will allow participants to adjust requirements to their work schedule needs.

CREDIT/COST

This course awards three semester hours of graduate credit from Jacksonville University. The tuition is $375 for three semester hours credit.

This is the first in a series of six courses being offered for those who wish to earn the 18 hours credit needed to become qualified to teach speech for FCCJ. Listed below are the remaining courses in the series.

Oral Intrepretation
Effective Communication Strategies
Organizational Communication
Augumentation/Debate
And one from the following -- Nonverbal Communication, Voice and Diction, and Small Group Communication

---

TO REGISTER, DETACH AND RETURN THIS FORM

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Employed by _____ Position/Grade _____

Phone: home _____ office _____

Have you attended or taken a credit course from JU? _____

$50 non-refundable deposit to register for
(No deposit required of FCCJ faculty)

☐ EDU 502 Rhetorical Theory
FALL 1998

Make checks payable to May & Associates, Inc.

Mail to: May & Associates, Inc. 1100 Cesery Blvd. Suite 8 Jacksonville, FL 32211

For more information call 743-3671