Redacted

Dear Phyllis,

Freedom is never so sweet to those who benefit from it as to those who fought for it.

Women have made vast contributions over the years in all areas – in education, in medicine, in business, in politics, and in the many humanitarian and charitable causes.

Women have been a part of Jacksonville's history from the beginning, and now we have the opportunity to create with the University of North Florida a record of these accomplishments by establishing a Women's History fund to study Jacksonville women leaders of the past and hopefully also of the future.

I believe in the "Jacksonville's Women of Influence" Project and have made a commitment to further this study of women's history. I hope that you will join me in making a contribution to this very worthwhile project.

Thank you,
