Highlights in Jazz Series Features Red Norvo

The "Soft Swinging Sounds" of saxophonist Red Norvo, who will be a featured performer at the New York University Loeb Student Center on Nov. 12, have been described as "a delightful quip of the swing era" by critic John S. Wilson. His performance will include such favorites as "Soft Swinging Sounds," "Surprise Party," "I've Got the World on a String," and "They All Laughed."

Mr. Norvo's group, formed primarily last summer, features a nucleus of New York City musicians who have played together for many years. The band includes saxophonist Norvo, pianist Tony Ragusa, bassist Chris Berg, and drummer Ed Stockham. Their material includes original compositions by John S. Wilson.

Jack Kleinsinger's "Highlights in Jazz" concert at the NYU Loeb Student Center on Thursday evening, November 12th proved to be one of the truly great jazz events of the fall season. It was an unusually artistic presentation because it brought the world renowned Red Norvo and Maxine Sullivan together before a sold-out audience. The 70-year-old Maxine received a standing ovation and she romped through her repertoire of "Soft Swinging Sounds" including "Surprise Party," "I've Got the World on a String," "Everytime I Fall In Love," "A Hundred Years From Today," and "They All Laughed." Red Norvo and Tal Farlow Trio, Mike Peters' Quintet and with it's wonderful musicians prompted the audience to chant "More, More, More" and after the concert scores of NYU Students crowded back stage to greet Red Norvo and Max Sullivan along with the younger musicians on Jack Kleinsinger's great show. Bravo!!
