JAZZ

Sylvia Syms has been singing pop for more than 40 years in a voice one critic has called a "thrilling contralto," and she envelopes audiences with a warm personality that is underscored by the talk that goes along with the singing in her nightclub appearance.

Tonight at 8 P.M., Miss Syms appears in concert, co-starring with Al Cohn on tenor saxophone and Joe Newman on trumpet, as part of the "Highlights in Jazz" series at New York University's Loeb Student Center, 566 LaGuardia Place, at 4th Street. Fittingly, it is called, "A Jazz Portrait of Johnny Mercer," the prolific songwriter who wrote "Satin Doll" (with Billy Strayhorn), "Come Rain or Come Shine" (with Harold Arlen), "Skylark" (with Hoagy Carmichael), "Days of Wine and Roses" (with Henry Mancini).

She will be accompanied by Russ Kasoff on piano, Jay Leonhart on bass and Ronnie Bedford on drums. Admission: $7.50; students: $6. Information: 596-2027.

A JAZZ PORTRAIT OF JOHNNY MERCER/ NYU LOEB STUDENT CENTER/NOV. 14

As we move deeper into fall, Jack Kleinsinger (pictured with Joe Newman) pays tribute to the man responsible for "Autumn Leaves." This jazz portrait will undoubtedly feature renditions of "Come Rain or Come Shine," "Skylark," "Days of Wine and Roses" or any of the many tunes Johnny Mercer added to America's popular songbook. Featured performers include Newman, Sylvia Syms, Al Cohn and surprise guests. JL.

MUSIC

Homages to Johnny Mercer:
The versifier behind a disproportionate number of the best song lyrics will be paid tribute twice this week. A Highlights in Jazz concert features Sylvia Syms, who understands everyone's lyrics, and a band including Al Cohn and Joe Newman, November 14, Loeb Student Center, 566 LaGuardia Place, 598-2027, a production called Accentuate the Positive with presumably a larger but less well-known cast debuts November 18 through 20, the Bottom Line, 15 West 4th Street, 228-7880. (Giddins)
Dear Jack,
I love you.
But you’ll always be "the one that got away" to me.

Sincerely,
Sylvia Syms
