May 23rd, 1918.

My Dearest Wife:

I received four wonderful letters from you this month, written on May 30th, May 1st, and 2nd. All the news they contained was good, and very satisfying, except that you are worrying because we are so near the Front. Now, dear, I want that to stop because there is absolutely no need of it. It is true that I am nearer to the Front than I was at Fort Harrison, but I am not in any more danger. We are stationed where we can secure the wounded cases within the shortest possible time and so necessarily must be within a comparatively short distance as far as time is concerned, but don't forget that transportation is very rapid now, and an ambulance can cover a lot of ground in a short time. And the guns—I don't care how many I hear as long as they are pointed the other way. The Germans have absolutely no chance of shelling us on account of our shelter position and the fact that we are all good runners. Unbearable let me joke about it a little if I want to. I don't like to feel always that I am so safe and protected from harm, while so many brave men are in constant danger. Of I didn't know I am doing a necessary task, I would feel worse about it. I constantly keep in mind the fact that I have a dear wife and two beautiful children to love and care for, and so am heartily satisfied to be where I am, and where I am, I assure you dearest, is fully as safe as my own front yard at home. Don't worry. Jane is perfectly well, as brown as an Indian and in better health than I ever have enjoyed before and are in no danger at all. So write to me dearest and tell me that you are now reassured and are worrying no more about danger that doesn't exist.

I read Uncle's letter with interest and am glad to hear that they look for improvement in Puss' condition. It would surely be terrible if her trouble should become permanent and I am sure that it won't. Isn't it too bad that it is the way he does about the money. He must know how much more in need of it you are than himself. If I were you I'd write to Uncle about it. I believe he likes to hear and that if she knew about it she would make him pay.
He certainly has lost all claim on your love and confidence and I would never blame you if you have nothing more to do with him.

I had a very nice letter from Dad in which he said he wished he was young enough to join the army. If he lived in Germany he would be young enough I guess, as they are beginning to put in the grandfathers and great-grandchildren over there. Cheer up dear, they will be on the relief before long. There is an army over here.
now that cards whip any other on the face of the earth, and Germany's hour has come. There is no note but of absolute confidence in their defeat, over here and I think results will soon begin to justify it.

Another perfect dry, perfectly beautiful. It is very warm but a nice breeze makes it possible to sleep very comfortable and cool, and it is a Godsend to have such weather after the weeks and weeks of rain and mud. The warm weather is bringing out the bumblebees and for some reason or other
They seem particularly fond of my tent. I think every time I see one I see one of how very pleased you would be to have him to hear. I am not on duty tonight—in fact, haven't been all day—but have been very busy in spite of the fact. I am going to bed at about 8:30 as per my usual custom. Tomorrow night Army may and I am going down to the hotel for dinner and to the club after dinner for a game or two of billiards. That constitutes my sole diversion and relaxation as well.

I am going to close now, darling. It is nearly nine o'clock and I have to do a little cleaning up first. Remember lover—don't worry about me. Just love me, and always think that I am loving you and taking good care of myself for your sake. Give my love and kisses to my darling babies and Ted. With all my dearest love to you my sweet girl, I love you.

"A.B."

P.S.